

MS. KATY

Hi there, I'm Ms. Katy, and I'm thrilled and honored to have joined the FLLC family as an after-school teacher in August 2016. I grew up as the oldest of all the cousins on my Papaw's farm in Taylorsville. Though the Lake is all anyone has usually heard of from there, we spent most of our time back on Salt River, in the 135-acre backyard, the garden, and in the kitchen. I attended the same church my grandparents and parents married in, and began stepping the stones to a career in education through assistant teaching the Children's Church and Vacation Bible School.

After flying the nest, I studied English and Education at U of L, taught after-school art classes through Young Rembrandts, and served as a remedial reading instructor at a middle school, before coming to Lexington to finish my college career in Information and Communication Technology, and pursue a Master's in Library Science. After all, I was raised to bleed blue.

In my free time, I love to listen to music and attend local concerts, cook (and eat, generally), and hike. On the weekends, I visit my family back in Taylorsville and Louisville, or explore Cincinnati or Red River Gorge.
