

The Dynamic Wholeness of the Universe

Sunday, August 12, 9:45 – 10:40 AM, Faith Lutheran Gathering Area

You're invited to this fascinating presentation at the intersection of science and religion

The reality of a conscious universe, supported by many scientists and theologians, is pointing to a dynamic principle moving all things toward spiritual wholeness.

In this presentation Ed Olson discusses this topic from the perspective of his new book And God Created Wholeness (Orbis Books, 2018). The book will be available for purchase at the presentation.

Participants who put primacy in the material basis of science and participants for whom the essence of reality is Spirit will both be surprised about the underlying dynamic wholeness revealed by quantum biology that unifies both positions.

This new paradigm has significant implications for deep personal development, relationships, ecology, moral leadership, community, and the integration of science and religion.

Ed Olson, Ph.D., taught in colleges and universities for 40 years. Currently, he leads workshops for churches and the Chautauqua Institution in science, spirituality, and religion.
